

Mohamed is international arbitration counsel at Whiteford Taylor Preston LLP, with experience handling commercial, financial, construction, and investment disputes as both counsel and arbitrator before major arbitral institutions. A bilingual, dual-qualified attorney in common and civil law jurisdictions, his international arbitration practice is global in scope, with particular emphasis on disputes connected to the Middle East and Africa. Mohamed leverages his experience on matters spanning multiple sectors and practices, including investment, construction, energy, finance, tech/telecom, IP, securities, partnerships, M&A, real estate, insurance, digital assets, and handles award annulment/enforcement proceedings. Mohamed is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators and lectures at law schools in the U.S. and the Middle East.