

"Mariana Verdes is a practising barrister in Ireland with over seven years' experience in civil litigation and particular expertise in alternative dispute resolution. Her involvement in arbitration began in 2016, when she represented University College Dublin (UCD) at the Vis Moot. She subsequently coached the UCD team for several years. Since commencing practice at the Irish Bar, Mariana has acted in domestic and international arbitration matters, including proceedings before the High Court for the enforcement of arbitral awards. She is currently serving as Tribunal Secretary in a high-value ICSID dispute. Mariana is a member of Arbitration Ireland and serves on the committees of Young Practitioners Arbitration Ireland and the Bar of Ireland's ADR Committee."
